Introduction

1. O God, my God, the one I seek,

my soul is dis-posed for a sto-ry.

On you, in your Tent, at your Glo-ry,

I'm long-ing to gaze, at the peak.

Than life it-self your love is bet-ter.

My lips de-light in con-stant praise,

and bless you glad-ly all my days,
to you, for sus-ten-ance, a debt-or.

2. I'll sing for joy and not de-bate

while feast-ing in style on the mar-row.

All night on my bed, long and nar-row,

I'll think of your help, and will wait.

While drear-y dan-gers are re-ced-ing,

with sol-ace in your win-ds out-spread and en-er-gy when all, but dead,

your right hand sends me what I'm need-ing.

3. May those who shad-ow me to death

go down to the depths, fur-ther un-der,

where jack-als, with stuff they can plun-der,

make vic-tims let go of their breath.

A hap-py King will then be rul-ing,

while all who do their job shall boast,

in tend-ing to their work en-grossed,

and tongues are si-lenced as they're cool-ing.
